President's Message:

By Ruth Muraskin

ATHA President

I hope this finds each and every ATHA Member hooking and enjoying the new year. This year will provide a new look to our Newsletter never seen before. I am proud to be a part of this revelation of color in our Newsletter.

Please note the camps, workshops and hook-ins within the ads and events and treat yourself to a wonderful hooking experience sometime this year.

The 2009 ATHA Biennial will be held in Louisville, Kentucky. It's hard to believe that it takes two years of planning to have everything run like a well oiled machine when you arrive, but each committee will tell you that less time would be a disaster.

Enjoy this issue and happy hooking. Please note the changes. Other than color, another big change was placing the ads within the articles with an index in the front.

Also, the covers will have rugs only on the front and inside front. Due to the extra cost of printing and paper, we offered the back cover and inside back cover to advertisers who want this premium placement.

Email me what you think...likes and dislikes!
